DO YOU REMEMBER...

NEW MEXICO HORSE BREEDER MAY 1981 pg 25

interview with raymond eaves,

chairman, the new mexico racing commission

story, marilyn reeves

Reeves: How long have you served on the New Mexico Racing Commission?

Eaves: I have served on the New Mexico Racing Commission since May, 1979.

Reeves: What changes, both good and bad, have you seen take place in the racing industry over the past several years?

Eaves: There has been a positive change in the printing of the new rule book for horsemen, owners and trainers. It will give the racing industry in New Mexico a positive step forward and a new direction. This rule book has been long overdue. I feel the commission can be more consistent in their policy-making decisions. With this in mind, the track management and the horse owners and breeders can look for more continuity in working with the commission to make New Mexico a great place to race. Secondly, the medication bill has been under review for the past year and a half. I feel this has got to benefit everyone in the racing business in New Mexico. It will prevent unfair and illegal practices and maintain the highest integrity in racing not only from the standpoint of owning a horse, but from the standpoint of the trainers and the betting patron.

Reeves: The racing commission met recently to discuss medication control on race days. Could you tell us what the issue was and what was decided?

Eaves: The two drugs that were under consideration were Lasix and Bute. As you know, in the January meeting, Lasix was banned from New Mexico. I think we can live with this. The horsemen can also live with this. The other medication in question was Bute (Butazolidin). State chemist, Dr. Shoenfeld, has recommended that the use of Bute be limited to five (5) micrograms per milliliter by injection 24 hours before race day or orally (by tablet) 36 hours before race day. The horsemen and the commission can both live with this level. This can help by making the medication available to horses that may need it and also help the commission see that there is no abuse of Bute. The commission will deal severely with the use of medications containing drugs with stimulant or analgesic properties. The commission has been concerned in the past not with the use of Lasix and Bute, but with the abuse of Lasix and Bute. With the guidelines set down we can monitor Bute more closely and this can help the commission to prevent any abuse of Bute.

Reeves: The new rule book governing racing in New Mexico is soon to be issued. In your opinion, has it been sufficiently brought up-to-date to deal with problems facing the industry today? What revisions in particular would you cite as meeting today's challenges?

Eaves: Yes, in my opinion the new rule book has been brought up-to-date to meet the demands and problems of today's racing industry. As I have mentioned before, uniformity of rules of medication; of suspensions and of fines; of what rules relate to the horse owners. Everything has been revised—the rules were written with the layman in mind. The rules are easy to read and can be understood by anyone—the whole package looks good.

DO YOU REMEMBER...

Reeves: As you know, House Bill 395, which initiated the breeders' award fund, was put into effect in December, 1979. What are your personal feelings about this bill and its relation to the industry as a whole?

Eaves: House Bill 395 is a good bill. It will help promote breeding in the state of New Mexico. I would rather see the money spent here in New Mexico rather than see it go to Kentucky or any other state. It can offer financial incentives to New Mexico horse breeders to make the racing healthier and create greater rewards. I think it will pay big dividends in the future.

Reeves: There has been much discussion lately regarding the Governor's Organized Crime Commission Report. Speaking on behalf of the entire New Mexico Racing Commission, how would you respond to that report?

Eaves: First, I can only speak as one commission member, but I feel the rest of my fellow commission members would agree, the crime commission report in my opinion leaves a lot to be desired. For instance, I think specifics are needed such as names, dates and places. It seems to me we are working on rumors, innuendos and generalities. I think this is unfair for racing in New Mexico.

Reeves: What areas of racing do you think need improvement?

Eaves: I have seen the commission come a long way in the short time I have been a member, not only in terms of a medication policy, but in terms of a new, revised rule book and a better understanding between the horse owners, trainers and track management with the commission. I think we need to build upon these achievements we have accomplished in the last two years in having a greater working relationship between all facets of the racing industry. The racing commission needs the help and cooperation of all concerned in making this relationship more workable. •
